Articles/Quotes

"Knable clearly understands the bassoon's vast possibilities beyond its traditional instrumental setting. His compositional expertise grounds his explorative instrumental creations and answers his own question 'Why does this work have to exist?' Because it is great!" -Tiina Kiik, The WholeNote, May/June 2020

"The genius of [36 Views of Mount Fuji] is the singularity of subject. Each of the 36 short movements are strung together by a common harmonic language and by the shared trait of Fuji. This shared subject allows for a sense of immense scale and provides a unique perspective from every movement. Natsuki Fukasawa navigated these changing moods and perspectives with ease and commitment. She would enjoy a spritely, whimsical character one moment, only to jolt us back to life with a tempestuous flurry of notes." -Colin Roshak, Anchorage Press, November 2019

"This [jazzy vibe] continues with Glassworks by pianist/composer Sunny Knable... This is another very light and entertaining work." -Daniel Coombs, Audiophile Audition, February 2016

"The Magic Fish [is composed] in a witty style with lovely melodic music by composer Sunny Knable...[whose] music is romantic and lilting." -Victor Gluck, TheaterScene.net, October 2015

"Mr. Knable... displayed a fine ear for instrumental sonority and a wealth of thematic invention. With all of his gifts as a composer and performer, he will be worth watching." -Angel Sutton, feastofmusic.com, January 2012

"Lately, the group Citywater has been keen on embracing the work of Sacramentan and New York-based composer Sunny Knable... it was with the premiere of his Music of the Rails that this bright sextet offered up its greatest charms on Sunday... it was an impressive work whose music offered up sparks of color and inventiveness." -Ed Ortiz, Sacramento Bee, Nov 2010
